Proud to be Nightingale: Celebrating Our National Recognition Together

We are very proud to share some special news with you.

Nightingale Primary School has recently received a letter from Bridget Phillipson, Secretary of State for Education, recognising the excellent outcomes achieved by our disadvantaged pupils at the end of the 2024/25 academic year. In her letter, she congratulates the school on results that place Nightingale among the very strongest nationally.

She wrote:

“Your school’s performance places it among the very best nationally, and this is a significant achievement.”

This national recognition is a wonderful endorsement of the hard work, resilience, and ambition shown by our pupils, as well as the dedication and commitment of our staff. Importantly, it also reflects the vital role played by you, our parents and carers. Your support at home, engagement with learning, and partnership with the school are a huge part of what makes this success possible. The Secretary of State also highlighted the importance of maintaining high expectations and a continued focus on supporting pupils who may face additional challenges. This remains central to our work at Nightingale. We are proud of the inclusive, aspirational culture we have built together — one where every child is supported to thrive.

We wanted to share this recognition with you as a celebration of our whole school community. Thank you for the trust you place in us and for the role you play every day in supporting your children’s learning and success.
